Foreword.

America, the motto "See your own country first" has for years been held in honour in printed official direction and practical public observance. In the great Australian Commonwealth, and more particularly in the highly varied State of Queensland, it should receive similar honour, and happily it increasingly does so. The Queensland Government Intelligence and Tourist Bureau has much pleasure in presenting this little volume as an additional means whereby those who desire to know and enjoy Queensland may receive direction in regard to pleasurable places to visit and profitable places in which to reside, at least so far as the South-eastern portion of the State is concerned.

The more a man stays permanently in one place the more the stamp of his environment is on him, and the more restricted is his knowledge of and joy in the beauty and abundance of the works of Nature and the works of man. Time moves on, never loitering, and scenes change as the energy, hope, and determination of man and the application of science keep pace with the revolution of Time's steady indomitable wheel.

In a new country such as Queensland, where there already are so much vigour, energy, and will, and in which, because of its special attractiveness, natural richness, and incidental encouragement, those human qualities should constantly increase, changes inevitably and quickly overtake the aspect of landscapes. Fertile areas are won bare from their primeval growths, are ploughed, seeded, and made lovely in other form.

Nature when left to herself is always harmonious, but new harmony is evolved when expert cultivation takes the place of Nature's gardens. In some of the coastal and mountain areas described in these pages Nature's gardens still grow undisturbed; in others new beauty has followed in the track of the plough, and the charms of variety are intensified by the intimate association of wildness and tillage.

All the scenes of which word pictures are given in this booklet are within a few hours' journey from Brisbane, and are accomplished within the limits of the busy city man's periodical week-end holiday. Included within their scope and total are not, as is the case in most tourist countries, divine wastes which have nought but distant scenic charms—no snow-fringed barren crags, no haughty alien peaks to prick the sky. Plateaux, mountain sides, often even mountain tops, are kindly and fertile. Man and beast find plentiful subsistence, and so close are mountain farm and sparkling sea that here, perhaps, better than anywhere else, can be supplied the needs of those healthy minds and bodies which, loving and desiring both work and play, instinctively make request—

"Give me fair acres for my tilling,
Toil of uplands for working-day,
Blithe bay boat-sails slacking and filling,
And bright waves calling to holiday."

The country described herein embraces a coastal tract extending some eighty miles north of Brisbane, and including the Noosa River District to the Tweed River District, bordering on the State of New South Wales, some seventy miles south of the metropolis. A descriptive account of this area is given under three divisions—the first being "The North Coast District"; the second, "The Nearer Seaside Resorts to Brisbane"; and the third, "The South Coast District."

The information given in respect of any rail or coach fare, also with regard to hotel and boarding-house tariffs, is that at the date of publication, and cannot be guaranteed for the entire currency of the circulation of this Guide, as circumstances may at any time cause slight alteration in such published fares and tariff rates. However, intending health-seekers and tourists will obtain some idea of their financial requirements when contemplating a sojourn at any of the mountain and seaside resorts mentioned herein.

Famous Glass House Mountains—Wonderful Sub-tropical Scenery.

HE best train by which to travel North Coastwards is that which leaves the Central Railway Station in Brisbane daily (except Sunday) shortly after 8 a.m.

The area to which the designation "North Coast" more particularly applies is entered at Caboolture, a town which stands on a river bearing the same name. Shortly after leaving Caboolture travellers get a fairly close view of the Glass House Mountains, so named by Captain Cook, in 1770, because they reminded him of the glass houses, or glass furnaces, near his home in Yorkshire, England. The aboriginal names of these weirdly shaped and entirely detached elevations have been geographically retained. The eleven principal peaks comprising the Glass House Mountains group are named:—Beerwah (1,760 feet), Coonowrin or Crookneck (1,170 feet), Tibrogargan (1.160 feet). Tunbubudla or The Twins (two peaks 1,100 and 1,020 feet), Micketeebumulgrai (1,000 feet), Beerburrum (980 feet), N'gungun (810 feet), Ewan or Tibberoowuccum (750 feet), and Coochin Hills (two peaks each 800 feet). Travellers may find much amusement in endeavours to pronounce some of them. The first-named three are the tallest, and usually there are fellow train travellers capable of identifying them. Their grey trachyte cliffs bespeak volcanic origin, but geologists place their age so far back that they may not very exaggeratedly be described as immortal. Strange accidents of prehistoric convulsion they stand, peculiar in their isolation as in their conformation, impregnable and everlasting, yet in aspect strangely sardonic. They invite the adventurous to ascent, but on their rocky sides offer foothold only to the most skilful and sturdy climbers. The hardness of their heights has been conquered by an adventurous few who, no doubt, compassed a view which rewarded them for the pains and dangers of the ascent.

Sternly these topographical freaks face the ocean, standing back from the bay waters in clear profile, each of them a striking landmark.

Near Beerburrum, the State has set aside an area of about 51,000 acres for settlement of discharged soldiers on the land. The soil, though not suitable for ordinary agriculture, has been found, with the addition of lime, to be suitable for the production of pineapples, and an expert in pineapple culture directs the operations and supplies advice. Included in the scheme are tramlines and trucks for the conveyance of the fruit to the railway, and the establishment of a State canning factory will insure the crops from wastage, even though there may be an occasional glut of fruit in the market. Other industries, such as poultry-raising and bee-keeping, will also be carried on by the discharged soldiers.

One of the unfailing fascinations of this line is the beauty of the palm scrubs which for a considerable distance line the way. Wise forethought long since decided that special areas of this tropiclike jungle should remain intact, so that they may for all time typify the original character of the timbers and foliage. Piccabeen and cabbage palms, intermingled with other trees, grow densely in association with graceful creepers, and orchids, epiphyte and ground ferns of vast variety, flowering shrubs, variegated foliage, and many large-leaved ornamental plants, all in their density of growth and verdure, entrance the vision, and in their wildness. richness, and beauty afford an unfamiliar spectacle worth travelling many miles to see. The soil in this area is of rich volcanic quality, and where the scrub has been removed sugar-cane farms and tropical fruit culture demonstrate its ability to produce to perfection this branch of husbandry.

Palmwoods, Woombye, Nambour, Yandina, Eumundi, and other pretty agricultural towns, backed by fertile hills, are passed, and the progressive township of Cooroy is gained.

TEWANTIN AND NOOSA.

COOROY, which derived its name from a mountain not far away, is the station at which those passengers who intend to visit Tewantin and Noosa Heads leave the train. The balance of the journey may be seen very pleasurably from the high front seat of a cheery three-horse mail coach. The distance from Cooroy Railway Station to Tewantin is about nine miles, and is accomplished in one and a-half hours.

Mount Cooroy is an isolated peak of conical formation. It stands north-eastward from the famous and beautiful Blackall Range. A low but fairly steep series of hills is crossed on the road to Tewantin, and a cliff-topped mountain for a time claims attention. Patches of palms, including several species, giant trees of the eucalyptus family, and hollows and slopes densely carpeted with bracken add interest to the way. A greenwood stream, at which the horses are refreshed with water drawn up to the bridge in a bucket attached to a rope, runs close beside a little school. Well-established farms and blocks, on which the labour of clearing has but recently begun, lie close by.

All round about Cooroy dairy farming, fruitgrowing, and mixed farming are profitably engaged in. Other busy industries are timber-getting and saw-milling.

UNIQUE TEWANTIN.

As the ages of towns and villages go in Queensland, Tewantin is a fairly old settlement. It stands restfully beside the broad mouth of the Noosa River. Green, smooth, and richly shady, it comforts tired Handsome heavily-foliaged trees, velvety eves. sward, neat homely houses, hospitable family hotels, tempting seats, enticing walks, little jetties, motor boats, swimming enclosures, total absence of glare, still lake, rich orchards, gardens, a refreshingly green island as vis-a-vis, the distant rhythmic roar of ocean breakers, a river supremely beautiful in its upper reaches and from which through deep straits some large and lovely lakes may be gained, Tewantin really is unique in situation and bountiful in its supply of beauty, restfulness, and sport. The Noosa River fishing-grounds have no superior in Australia. In the river, at its mouth, in Lakes Weyba, Cooroiba, and Cootharaba, fish of many varieties, including bream of several kinds, flathead, dewfish, tailor, whiting, garfish, swallow-tail, cod, sole, and others, abound, and even the novice is assured of big catches.

Cootharaba is the largest of the lakes, and is distant some ten miles from Tewantin. Once visited its charming aspect will cling to memory, so magnificent is the scenery.

Fishing parties and picnics on the shore are made doubly enjoyable by the addition of luscious fruits, which may be bought at trifling cost, i.e., at wholesale prices, straight from vine, plant, or tree.

Lake Cootharaba, or the "Big Lake," as it is commonly called, is seven miles long by five miles wide, and is reached by ascending the Noosa River through Lake Cooroiba. The banks of the river are densely clothed in vegetation, and present a very fine spectacle, especially when the wild apple and other scrub plants are in bloom. From the southern entrance to the lake, at a distance of about three miles to your left, is Boreen Point, a pretty spot, much frequented by picnickers, where Canadian cottages can be rented at reasonable rates.

TEWANTIN, NOOSA RIVER.

16 (1.) PARADISE CAVE, NOOSA. (3.) OUTSIDE DEVIL'S

KITCHEN, NOOSA. (2.) NOOSA BEACH AND HEADS.

Opposite to Boreen is a cliff some 600 feet high, against which large patches of sands of various shades of colour have been banked. These coloured sands, when collected and deftly placed in a glass phial or bottle so as to show to advantage the variegated strata, afford a pleasant memento of the trip and the "Teewah Sands."

Lakes Como and Cooloola lie to the north of Cootharaba, and in both of these excellent shooting and fishing, especially fresh water perch, are obtainable. The Noosa River is navigable for light draught boats a distance of 30 miles from the Heads.

For those hardy sportsmen who prefer open-sea waters for their operations with hook and line, the bright, lively waters of Laguna Bay are available. To get there it is necessary to cross the bar at the mouth of the river, and hired motor boats usually convey the schnapper-fishing enthusiasts to the right localities for securing both size and quantity.

Another charm of Tewantin Village is that it is free from insect pests. There are no sand dunes, nor sandflies; no brush, undergrowth, nor swamps to provide harbour for mosquitoes. A post office, telephone service, school of arts, stores, school, and public halls provide worldly requisites without impairing seclusion and peace.

NOOSA AND ITS BEACHES.

Motor boats meet the mail coach twice a day, and convey passengers between Tewantin and Noosa, the distance being about two and a-half miles. Lying between the two places on level land above the south bank of the estuary is a village known as Gympie Terrace, from the fact that many residents of Gympie have marine villas there, each furnished with its own landing place and motor or sailing boat.

Passengers for Noosa Beach or boarding-houses are easily landed from the motor boats, and a short walk through a shady scrub of typical sea-shore character brings them to very comfortable quarters or the most charming of wave-washed sands. Back from the beach stand easily-climbed hills, with tree-clad sides and pine-crowned tops. The beach itself, washed by the clean brisk breakers of Laguna Bay, is furnished with all the usual requisites for bathers.

Not far away is another beach, which has more thrilling acquaintance with gales, especially those which come from the south-east. This beach, Coolum, may be reached by walking from Noosa Beach round boulder-strewn Noosa Head if it is proposed to follow the sealine, or it may very interestingly be approached by a climb and descent of the wooded hills which hide it from view.

"Hell's Gates," about four miles along the beach, open precipitately in front of a green-swarded cliff, and when the water, driven by a stiff south-east wind, dashes into them through a narrowed aperture the surf is driven 120 feet in height.

"The Devil's Kitchen" and "Paradise Caves," in proximity to the former, and "The Boiling Pot" (one and a-half miles from Noosa) are other rock formations which each, by their familiar signification, hint their own tale, and which, when once visited, are ever afterwards remembered as forming an important part of the unique interests of a North Coast holiday.

Visitors to Tewantin or Noosa are assured of splendid accommodation at either place, and motor, rowing, or sailing boats can be obtained on hire at reasonable rates.

The Metropolis of the North Coast District.

THERE is no coastal railway in Australia that can furnish so many and interesting towns and districts this North Coast route. Nambour, a sugargrowing, sugar-milling town, sixty-five miles from Brisbane, is only one of several agricultural towns of like character which lie but narrowly apart in the rich palm scrub area. Before clearing and cultivation began, their sites and surroundings were all similar in character to the State reservations which here and there lie so luxuriantly beside the iron way. Nambour, Woombye, Palmwoods, and Yandina have much in common in topography, soil, and productiveness, and somewhat similar characteristics may be noted at Eumundi, Eudlo, and other towns within a Sugar-cane grows closely round short mileage. about Nambour and the sister towns, and the annual district shows witness much rivalry between them for supremacy in orchard, field, kitchen garden, nursery, and dairy products.

The palm scrubs, so conveniently at hand, furnish all the materials for perfection in the decorative demands of amusement halls, and often truckloads of palms are sent to Brisbane for similar purposes. It is evident that prosperity abounds in these districts, and that their populations realise their good fortune in being placed on such good soil and in such genial environment.

The Moreton Central Sugar Company's mill at Nambour accomplishes heavy crushings in the season, and at off seasons puts its power to the purposes of milling pine and other timbers. The mill crushes on an agerage 320 tons of cane per day, yielding 35 tons of raw sugar. In the season it gives employment to 103 men, and pays in wages £390 per week. The average price of cane delivered at the rollers is £1 12s. per ton. For the 1917 season the mill expects to crush 28,000 tons of cane for 3,300 tons of sugar.

Wm. WHALLEY,

NAMBOUR, MAPLETON, AND MAROOCHYDORE.

During the crushing season it is the most convenient mill at which Southern visitors to Brisbane may view the whole process of raw sugar manufacture.

New areas are being put under cane at Mooloolah, Eudlo, and Landsborough.

This company also owns a line of light railway which runs through cane farms to Bli Bli, on Petrie's Creek, where it meets a cargo and passenger boat which plies to Maroochydore, at the mouth of the Maroochy River. A trip on the sugar train gives a much closer acquaintanceship with sugar-cane in its varying growth and its many varieties than can be acquired from the main mail train route. The choice of observation usually will range from very young cane to cane mature or nearly mature enough for milling.

Another tramway or light line of railway leads from Nambour up a steep zig-zag route along the Dulong Range to Mapleton, a rich agricultural, dairying, and fruit-growing district, which, because of its high elevation, long suffered for want of speedy and direct communication with the metropolitan market. The line was built by the Maroochy Shire Council, and its maintenance is partly provided for by a system of special rating of properties in the benefited area. The total length of the main line is eleven and a-quarter miles, with branch lines of four and three-quarter miles.

Tourists or those who aim at permanent and profitable residence in this scrub-range area will do well to take a trip on the Mapleton tram, as the way is rich both in scenic charm and fertility.

Another delightful trip for the tourist is that to Maroochydore, embracing the tram trip through orchards and cane farms in various stages of growth, and the motor run on the beautiful Maroochy River to the Heads. This tour can also be accomplished by conveyance to Deans' Landing and motor boat thence down Petrie's Creek and Maroochy River.

MAPLETON AND ITS RANGE VISTAS.

AT an elevation of some 1,400 feet above sea-level. and commanding one of the finest views of the famous Blackall Range, is the progressive little township of Mapleton. The eleven and a-quarter miles of tram trip from Nambour over the Dulong Range to Mapleton is full of interest. Out of sheer curiosity one must first make an inspection of the quaint little engine, with its patent cog-wheel apparatus, used in the haulage of the traffic over the steep ranges to the township. Leaving behind the canefields around Nambour, banana groves and citrus orchards, the latter laid out with geometrical precision, are passed, whilst away down in the valleys dairy herds grazing in sweet contentment are discerned. Mapleton and the surrounding country provide many attractive beauty spots for the tourist visitor's inspection. Looking eastward, an extensive panorama, embracing some one hundred miles of coast line, is obtained, the range of vision extending from Noosa Heads to the South Passage, Moreton Island. Within two and a-half miles of the Post Office is the scenic Mapleton (formerly Baroon) Falls, from the top of which the water takes a sheer drop of 700 feet, where it is lost to sight in the ravines and dense scrub at its foot. Many miniature though very fine waterfalls are close at hand. Above the Mapleton Falls some splendid panoramas are obtainable, one of which portrays five distinct ranges. Another affords a view of the Obi Obi Valley below, where dairying, fruitgrowing, and timbergetting are chiefly carried on. Trout and cod are caught in the Obi Obi Creek, which is within easy walking distance of Mapleton. Pigeons, scrub turkeys, wallabies, &c., which abound in the adjacent scrubs, afford sport for the man with the gun.

The principal industries in and around Mapleton include canegrowing, fruit cultivation, dairying, timber-getting, &c. Citrus and other fruits are extensively raised, and it is estimated that the output for the present season will be 20,000 cases, 90 per cent. of which are citrus. The Mapleton soils, being of a red volcanic nature, are well adapted for this industry.

Should visitors desire to visit Montville, arrangements can be made with the proprietor of the Ocean View Hotel to be driven there, a distance of about six miles.

MAROOCHYDORE—Combining Charm of River and Ocean.

Like the waters of Noosa, those of the Maroochy River, right to its discharge into the Pacific Ocean at Maroochydore, are famous fishing places. "You cannot go wrong there," say the adepts with hook, bait, and line, and, as at Noosa, there seems no limit to variety—whiting, bream, mullet, flathead, garfish, tailor, rock cod, groper, schnapper, squire, dew, and many others.

Here if anywhere the majority will agree with Izaac Walton that to go fishing is almost in itself to travel the path of wisdom.

At Maroochydore there is an extensive beach, close to a tea-tree reserve which is famous as a camp colony in summer and holiday-time. Accommodation less picnic-like in character also is provided at Maroochydore by an excellent hotel and boarding-house, also by a system of furnished cottages.

Cartwright Point stands out boldly; its connection with the land is so slight that it looks almost like an island.

There are dressing-rooms, sheds, and a life-saving reel at the beach, which stretches unbrokenly for four miles, and which is divided only by a by no means impassable region of boulders below the point from more extensive beaches beyond.

Maroochydore is very charmingly placed. The placid waters beside it are shallow and many-shaded in their vagaries of green. The view includes a small headland standing out strikingly bare except for a meagre row of mathematically distanced trees. A few miles further out is Mudjimba Rock, commonly called "Old Woman Island," in proximity to which excellent catches of schnapper and other deep sea fishes are made.

Shoals of fish constantly pass, and individual fish seem to vie in their jumping qualities. On one side Buderim Mountain farms overlook the scene from a few miles distant—about three miles by the aerial path of the crow. The front view beyond the placid lake-like waters and timbered shores takes in Mounts Cooroy, Coolum and Ninderry, which stand out clearly blue.

A distant, rhythmic roar of surf always accompanies life at Maroochydore, and away beyond the queer little headland strong eyes may see the sparkle of spray as waves beat upon the sands of the beach.

An almost constant charm of waters as they broaden out into a quiet lake-like sea at the mouth of a tidal river is the way in which they play a painter's part by their reflection of the sky, by night and day. At Maroochydore such reflections make a fascinating study.

There is a choice of regular motor boat trips to Bli Bli and Yandina. The trip to Yandina follows the upward course of the Maroochy River. As the banks of the stream grow nearer to each other, the beauty of the waterway is intensified by the luxuriance of the green woods on either side. Branches of trees and wildly adventurous stems and foliage of vines almost meet overhead at those portions of the way where Nature has remained undisturbed by tillage.

The Maroochy River has several tributaries, one of which, Petrie's Creek, is traversed on the water route which leads to Bli Bli, the terminus of the Moreton Sugar Company's tramway. On the way sugarcane plantations and fruit farms are passed. Fishermen's homes, identified by drying nets, are seen. At short distances there are landing stages on which cases of fruit—chiefly pineapples, bananas, and passion-fruit—are waiting to form part of the cargo. Glimpses of maize patches suggest variety in the character of the soil on the flats.

Arrived at Bli Bli, there is much unloading of cases and bags, and much reloading on trucks.

Generally there will be a fishing-boat at the steps, and cases of fish and mud crabs, shaded by cool green boughs, may await transfer to the tram.

A magnificent panorama is obtained from the top of Mount Coolum, which is reached by taking the motor boat up the Maroochy River to the landing at Coolum Creek, a distance of nine miles from Maroochydore; thence a short walk and easy climb land you at the summit. The view encompassed includes Bribie, Moreton, and Stradbroke Islands, whilst down beneath the beautiful Coolum Beach stretches, uninterruptedly, for miles along the coast.

Dunethim Rock and Dunethim Lake, 12 miles up the Maroochy River, are picturesque spots well worth visiting.

There are a few furnished cottages available for letting.

Means of Access.

Maroochydore may be reached by many different routes, the most convenient of which are enumerated hereunder.

The return journey can always be made by a different method to the forward one, whereby new scenes are continually unfolded to the tourist. In this feature Maroochydore excels:—

- (1.) Rail to Yandina (69 miles), thence per Coulson's motor launch to destination. Train leaves Brisbane Central daily (except Sunday). Launch leaves Yandina Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, 9 a.m. Return same day at 1 p.m. Fares, 2s. each way.
- (2.) Rail to Nambour (65 miles). Tram to Bli Bli, thence motor launch to Maroochydore. Train leaves Brisbane Central daily (except Sundays). Tram leaves Currie street, Nambour, Tuesdays and Thursdays, 12 noon; Saturdays, 2 p.m.; Sundays, 8.30 a.m. Motor launch awaits arrival of tram at Bli Bli, and proceeds thence to Maroochydore. Joint tram and boat fares: Adults 2s., children 1s., each way. Excursion tickets, 3s. and 1s. 6d. respectively. Launch leaves Maroochydore for Nambour Tuesdays and Thursdays, 12 noon; Saturdays, 2 p.m.; *Sundays, 3.45 p.m.

* Note.—Passengers reach Nambour in ample time to have tea there and catch the Gympie to Brisbane train; arriving Central Station 9.55 p.m.

Parcels are carried to and from Maroochydore by this route at the following rates:—28 lb., 3d.; 56 lb., 6d.; 112 lb., 1s.

- (3.) Rail to Nambour, thence by H. B. Hill's conveyances to Deans' Landing (Petrie's Creek), thence motor launch to destination. Run day or night to suit patrons.
- H. B. Hill's conveyances ('phone 33, Nambour). Rates—Party of ten (10) or more, 1s. per head; sulky, 5s. per trip; buggy (to hold five), 7s. 6d. per trip to Deans' Landing. Night travelling at special rates.

ALEXANDRA HEADLAND—Splendid Seaside Recreation Resort.

No finer view of beach, river, bay, and mountains can be obtained than that from Alexandra Headland, where many building sites have lately been sold with a view to the formation of a holiday town. Already some pretty red-roofed houses have been built, and the soil is such that it quickly responds to the cultivation of picturesque garden plots. Situated as it is between the Buderim tram terminus and Maroochydore, it is easy of access by either the Palmwoods or Nambour route. As a seaside resort it is destined to become one of the most popular along the North Coast. The Headland itself is attractive and picturesque. From the higher points of vantage some beautiful coastal scenes are noted—Point Cartwright and the entrance to the Mooloolah River forming a very fine picture, indeed. The vast stretch of clean sandy beach appeals muchly to the surfer, especially as it is so well sheltered from the boisterous south-easterly weather which occasionally prevails.

Fishing is exceptionally good either on the ocean coast or in and at the mouth of the Mooloolah River which is close by.

Alexandra Headland is best reached by rail to Palmwoods, thence tram to Buderim (fare, 2s. each way), and thence by conveyance to the Headland, direct (fare, 2s. each if more than one person).

BUDERIM-Renowned for Health and Wealth.

Those who would see the orchards from which the popular Buderim oranges come must leave the North Coast Railway at Palmwoods, and travel by the Maroochy Shire Council's tramway to the fertile tableland on the top of Buderim Mountain, situated at an elevation of 600 feet. The red-soiled roads of pretty Palmwoods township are left behind, and outlying pineapple and orange orchards are passed before the little tram behind the sturdy little engine begins its steady ascent over a way which reveals a magnificent and varied growth of timbers on hillside, in gorge, and glen.

Among the giant gums in their perfection of perpendicularity are informal armies of palms—here, as wherever they are, as graceful as classical. Giant ferns, mimosa wattle, bracken, gay-leaved shrubs, flowering trees and creepers make beautiful the way.

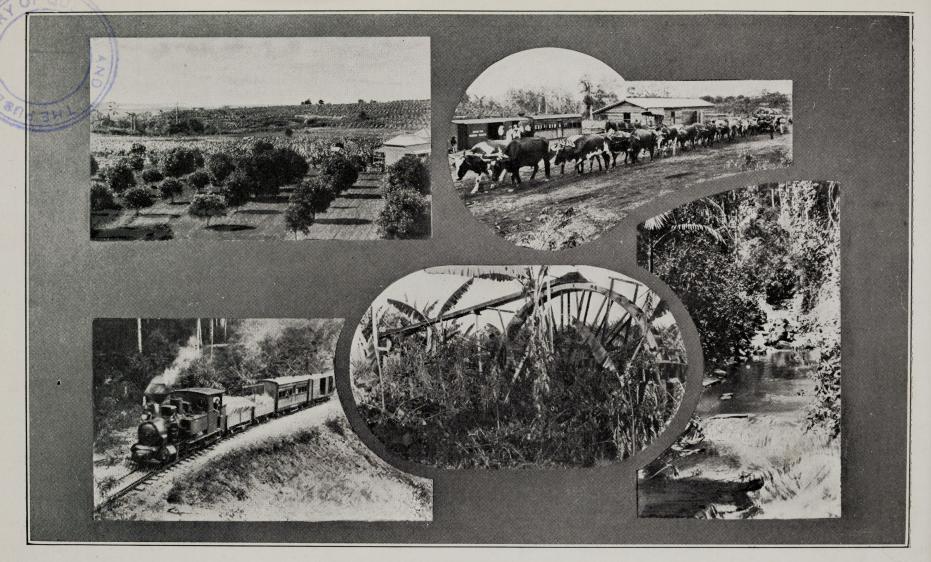

Occasionally where human occupation has conquered wildness, there may be seen orchards and homesteads, grass lands and contented dairy herds.

At the stopping-places clean, new cases filled with oranges may be observed, waiting for transport.

Rippling creeks, newly won clearings, forest, and glen, and then comes the stiffest climb from which the finest scenic effects—heavily timbered steeps and palm-treed glades—are seen. Among the many glossy-leaved timbers are the beautiful beech, new growths in cedar, the lovely and wholly unworthily named bean-tree, silky oaks, and among them all the reddish tops of the junior gums and the crimson leaves of shrubs which deserve a distinctive name in bush lore, but which strangely enough have it not locally.

Banana farms prosperously flaunt on slopes towards the top, and a cultivated growth of unfamiliar character is interpreted as enterprise in coffee bean culture.

The broad, elevated plateau of the mountain top which was formerly held by a few pioneer selectors, now provides homes and incomes for a large number of fruit farmers, and the whole settlement comprises what may best be described as an extensive fruit-producing village.

Twenty years after the first coming of the cedargetters the first homestead selections were taken up. The first selector put an experimental acre under sugar-cane. His success induced an extension of that class of cultivation by himself and other settlers, some of whom still live on their own land at Buderim, and interestingly tell the story of experiment and endeavour. Finally it was decided that the surest future for the locality lay in the cultivation of citrus fruits and bananas, and as the wisdom of that decision was proven, those who held land subdivided their holdings and sold them in orchard lots to new comers. Of late as high a price as £150 per acre has been paid for picked improved land.

The method usually adopted by the orchardists is to plant orange trees between bananas. The bananas bear fruit in three years, and the oranges bear fully in ten years. When the oranges are at their full extent of production, the old banana plants are destroyed.

One of the show places of Buderim is the school-house farm patch. The present teacher, Mr. R. C.

Bartlett, has had charge of the school and its agricultural operations for six and a-half years, and he has complete cause to be proud of his success. The Buderim school officially is linked up with the Nambour Rural School. Mr. Bartlett has made so many experiments in banana culture and has so carefully noted the result of those experiments, that he is classed as an expert grower, and his manual on cavendish banana growing, which was published by the Department of Public Instruction, has had a wide vogue, and is regarded as a standard work on the subject. He gained his original agricultural knowledge by taking a course at Gatton Agricultural College, and acquired the money necessary to begin cultivation on his school patch by organising concerts. On that extensive patch he and his enthusiastic pupils grow several varieties of bananas and papaws. oranges, lemons, passion-fruit, grapes, peaches, strawberries, artichokes, cauliflowers, cabbages, lettuce, herbs, coffee, and fodder cane. In the flowergarden section annuals are cultivated and scientific rose-grafting has resulted in sturdy growth and lovely perfumed blooms.

There is a large boarding-house, from the lookout tower of which a scene of grandeur, breadth, and variety may be viewed. Eastward, beyond banana fields, pleasant homesteads, trees, and dense foliage is the sea. Westward are the billowy heights, tall timbers, light and shade of the Blackall Range. Northward are beautiful valleys giving glimpses of winding streams.

Views should be obtained and studied from various points, each of which will have a delightful surprise to offer. One of the most effective pictures can be seen from the grounds of Mr. Lindsay, one of the oldest and most progressive residents. It includes ranges and richly timbered forests, valleys through which wind silvery streams, a glimpse of bay waters. The light and shade effects are as variable as they are beautiful, and the glory of dawn, sunrise, and sunset is intensified by the surrounding loveliness.

All the orchardists who were queried expressed the opinion that only a very small acreage was necessary in that locality to enable a family man to make a fair living. The drive from Buderim to the beach and Maroochydore is beautiful throughout its length. After leaving the plateau it passes through forest ways, looks down on new farms or densely timbered hollows, and in its more level ways is pleasantly familiar with palm and luxuriant carpets of fern. Portion of the drive may be made to lead across the wet sand of the beach, and the whole, including fishing, bathing, and picnicking, is accomplishable within the limits of a day.

MONTVILLE—Queen of the Blackall Range.

Those Queenslanders or tourists who decide upon seeing all the beauties and holiday resorts approachable from the North Coast Line most probably will choose some point of interest and make it a centre for explorations, and those metropolitan residents who wisely indulge the week-end holiday habit will seek places easily accomplishable between Saturday and Monday. The latter class of traveller, also those who seek a longer stay in scenes both beautiful and recreative, will find Montville, 1,420 feet above sea-level, an agricultural village area high up in the Blackall Ranges, uniquely capable of supplying all that they ask for.

To reach Montville it is necessary to leave the North Coast Railway at Palmwoods. Presuming that the 8.10 a.m. train from Brisbane has been travelled by, there will be ample time to make a brief survey of Palmwoods before taking a seat in the mail wagonette on which the drive of some six miles to Montville usually is accomplished. So popular have holidays at Montville become that it is always necessary to write beforehand to assure that seats are reserved in the ordinary conveyance or that additional conveyances are chartered to meet the emergencies of a rush of sightseers.

Montville is a much newer settlement than Buderim, which is of lower elevation, but it has many similar characteristics. The first settlement was by homestead selection, but as the fertility of the soil was demonstrated blocks were cut up and sold as orchard lots. It is now reckoned that a family can be comfortably supported on 10 acres, and that the owner of 25 acres can indulge a taste for mixed farming.

Oranges in many varieties, limes, lemons, pineapples, papaws, passion fruit, mangoes, strawberries, and custard-apples all can be grown profitably, but oranges and pines are most orchardists' staples.

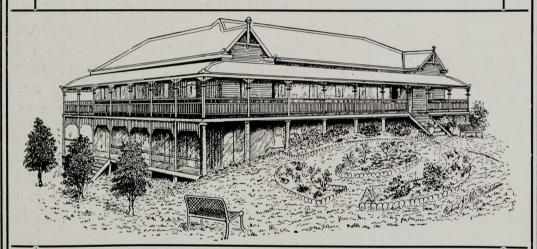

One grower, whose farm extends steeply down the side of the mountain, has numbered his bearing papaw trees to the extent of 1,000, and possibly he would be justified in boasting of the ownership of the largest papaw plantation this side of the equator.

Less than 2 miles away is the Bon Accord Waterfall, which has a drop of 300 feet.

Fresh-water cod and trout up to 2 lb. weight are caught in the Obi Obi Creek, which is within comfortable walking distance of Montville. Excellent sport with the gun is obtained in the adjacent scrubs.

There are some interesting caves also on that side of the range at a distance of 3 miles from Montville.

A new school of arts library has made a good beginning.

There is telephone connection to Brisbane through Palmwoods.

Montville people are quite justified in describing the Blackall Ranges as the "Blue Mountains" of Queensland. So widely travelled and distinguished a visitor as Hon. James Bryce, former British Ambassador to the United States and a celebrated man of letters, described Montville as being "as fertile in its soil and beautiful in its outlook as any place to be found anywhere."

This important little township, located some 51 miles from Brisbane on the North Coast Railway, is the gateway not only of two well-known health resorts, viz., Caloundra (seaside) to the east and Bald Knob (mountain) to the west, but to that of one of the most important of our North Coast dairying districts, Maleny, which is some 11 miles from Landsborough Railway Station. Landsborough, which is situated close to typical North Coast Line scenery, was named after the explorer so well known in Queensland history.

Banana and citrus fruit growing take up the attention of many on the eastern slopes of the range, the richness of the soil for such purposes proving a great inducement to many. Numerous inquiries for this class of land are being received from all parts of this and adjoining States.

BALD KNOB—Combining Sea and Mountain Air.

The health resort and fruitgrowing district of Bald Knob is situated about 3 miles from Landsborough on the main road to Maleny. The height of this eminence is claimed to be some 1,300 feet above sea-level. From its summit some extensive panoramic views are obtainable, that to the eastward being a vast coastal and ocean view, whilst in the valleys to the west lie numerous dairy farms, the distant ranges forming a pleasant background to a picture of great magnitude.

Within about half-a-mile of the Knob itself, and at an altitude of some hundreds of feet, there is a well-appointed boarding establishment which should prove a boon to those requiring a quiet and restful holiday amidst pleasant surroundings. Many beauty spots exist in and around the adjacent scrubs and watercourses, apart from those on the hilltops, whilst the atmosphere at all times of the year is most exhilarating.

There are numerous banana and citrus fruit farms on the eastern slopes of Bald Knob and Mount Mellum. At the latter place many are busily engaged in scrub falling and clearing for the purpose of further extending their operations in this direction. Results have proved conclusively the suitability of the soil about these parts for the production of such fruits.

The land about Bald Knob is composed of rich vine scrub and forest, and the soil, being volcanic and sandy loam, red and black, is classed among the very best of Queensland soils.

The average annual rainfall is 80 inches, and the creeks never stop running.

The Mellum Creek Falls can easily be reached from either Landsborough or Bald Knob. Huge ferns of all descriptions are to be found in great profusion about the falls.

To reach Bald Knob by the Maleny coach or motor it is necessary to leave Brisbane by the morning North Coast train, which runs daily (except Sunday), but those leaving by other trains may arrange for motor to meet them at Landsborough at any time. The distance may also be covered on foot, seeing that it is under 3 miles from the railway.

Coach leaves Maleny daily (except Sunday) at 7 a.m., passing Bald Knob about 8.45 a.m., and arriving at Landsborough at 9.30 a.m., in time to catch train reaching Brisbane 12.55 p.m. daily (except Wednesday and Sunday).

CALOUNDRA—For Bathing, Fishing, Shooting.

Nearer to Brisbane than those North Coast seaside resorts already noted is Caloundra. Intending visitors leave the railway at Landsborough, the first refreshment station, 51 miles from Brisbane. A mail motor-car meets passengers for Caloundra at Landsborough Railway Station, and conveys them through interesting palm scrub and forest country, which continues for a considerable distance towards their destination. En route some pretty and progressive dairy farms are passed.

From the Caloundra Lighthouse a magnificent view of the Glass House Mountains is obtainable, and immediately below you is a full-range view of Bribie Island, with the white cliffs of Moreton Island in the distance. Further to the north the Mooloolah Heads rise majestically from the sea, and between this point and Caloundra a 7-mile stretch of fine sandy beach is met with.

D. ROOKE, PROPRIETOR.

Caloundra beach proper lies between Moffat Head and Wickham Point, under the former of which is Tooway Creek, where bathing may be safely indulged in.

After crossing over the high ground on the northern side of Moffat Head, and before descending to the sandy beach below, the "Queen of the Colonies" tree is located. It is a pandanus tree, and is of historical interest. In the year 1863 the immigrant ship "Queen of the Colonies" arrived in Moreton Bay from London with a number of passengers, one of whom, a married woman, died just before their arrival. A boat's party was sent to bury the body on Moreton Island. After doing so. and when returning to the ship, they were caught by a sudden squall and blown out to sea, but were eventually washed ashore at Caloundra. parties were sent out, and one of them discovered the tree bearing the recently cut inscription of the ship. With such evidence, the search was renewed with fresh vigour, and eventually the party was found. after suffering fourteen days' exposure and privations. The tree still stands as a monument of that sad catastrophe, the lettering on its stem being clearly discernible at the present day.

About a half-mile to the north of Moffat Head lie the remains of the little iron steamer "Dicky," which ran ashore there some twenty-four years ago.

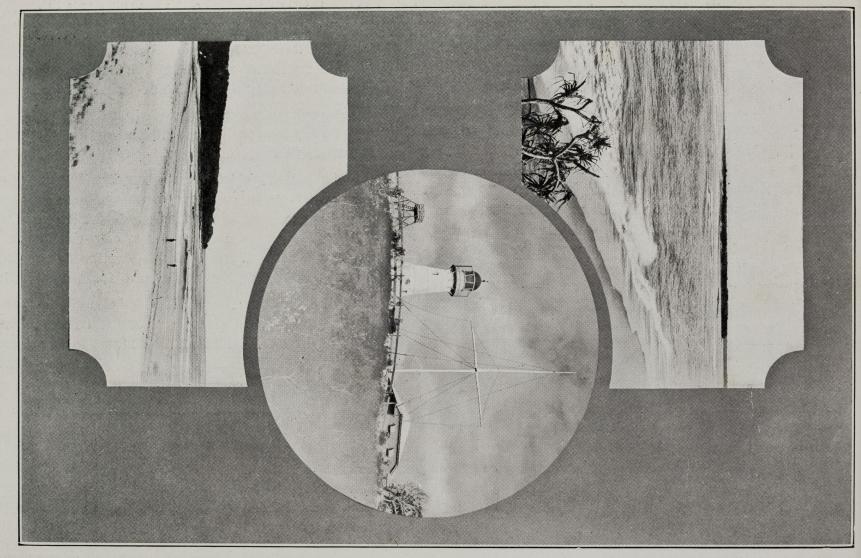

The bathing place at Caloundra lies in a sheltered position, and is considered one of the safest on the Queensland coast.

As a fishing ground Caloundra is recognised as one of the best, and practically all the varieties of fish found on the coast are caught here. One has his choice of fishing either along the ocean front or in the calm waters of the Pumice Stone Channel, which separates Bribie Island from the mainland.

Good accommodation is obtainable at the hotel and boarding establishments, and during the summer months it is advisable to address the proprietors some time in advance regarding the arrangements for quarters.

Means of Access.

Caloundra can be reached by rail to Landsborough; thence motor coach (15 miles), which connects with the North Coast morning train from Brisbane on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays. At other times it is necessary to arrange with the on account of their proximity to the capital, are better known than those of the more distant districts of the North and South Coasts. From the metropolis excellent roads radiate to the many resorts, which, in most instances, are also approached by rail and water. The motorist may enjoy delightful runs to Sandgate, Redcliffe, Manly, Wellington Point, Cleveland, and Redland Bay, which, for vistas of excellent bay and island scenery and passing views of well-tilled fruit farms, are unsurpassed in Australia.

Nudgee, Sandgate, Wynnum, Manly, and Cleveland are reached by speedy train service from Brisbane; while fast river and bay excursion steamers convey an ever-increasing number of patrons to Bribie, Redcliffe, and Woody Point.

Moreton Bay and islands are a perfect paradise for aquatic enthusiasts, and it would be hard to find a better cruising and fishing ground along the littoral of the Commonwealth than that embraced in the 90-mile stretch of placid waters extending from Caloundra to Southport.

The sheltering influences of Bribie, Moreton, and Stradbroke Islands afford these marine resorts an immense measure of protection from the relentless fury of the Pacific's mighty roll. For, as in the case of more distant resorts of the North and South Coast districts, one does not experience the exhilarating feeling of the stinging ocean surf, still the splendid sheltered beaches afford pleasant bathing for the sexes with the elimination of all element of danger. At holiday times, and during the summer season, these resorts attract city folk in hundreds, and are ideal places for spending the vacation.

The resorts referred to in this division all border on Moreton Bay or on indentations thereof.

SANDGATE—The Brighton of Queensland.

Being the nearest convenient resort north of the mouth of the Brisbane River, Sandgate has grown greatly in public favour, not only with the city folk, but also with residents of many of the country districts surrounding Brisbane. It is pleasantly situated along the shores of Bramble Bay, and being only 13 miles from the city is reached by an excellent train service from the Roma Street and Central Railway Stations, Brisbane.

After passing the pretty residential suburbs of Albion, Wooloowin, Eagle Junction, and Nundah, the station of Nudgee (8 miles) is reached. Within easy walking or driving distance, past pineapple and other fruit farms, is Nudgee Beach, a favourite camping resort, extending for some miles between Cribb Island and the mouth of Cabbage-tree Creek.

Serpentine Creek separates Nudgee Beach from Cribb Island, which is also reached from Nudgee Station or by road direct from Brisbane, a distance of 10 miles. It is much in favour as a resort for campers and has a fine sandy beach. Serpentine Creek affords good fishing. There is a kiosk, at which meals and light refreshments are obtainable. A motor-car plies between Nudgee Railway Station and Cribb Island on Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays.

Sandgate properly might be divided into two sections, the Upper Esplanade and the Lower Esplanade. The former extends from the mouth of Cabbage-tree Creek in a northerly direction for about a mile, and includes Shorncliffe and Moora Park. The Lower Esplanade, including Flinders Parade and Brighton, is more conveniently reached by leaving the train at Sandgate Central Station. This portion of the town has a nice even water front, the beach along which extends some miles to the northward.

Sandgate was proclaimed a municipality in 1880, and has an imposing town hall and many fine private residences. The population is about 3,500, which is augmented by thousands more during the season. It is lit with gas.

Sandgate possesses a very fine pier, to which are attached separate bathing enclosures for ladies and gentlemen. Bathing houses and other conveniences are provided along the water front for the use of visitors.

between the pier-head and Woody Point (Humpy-bong), particulars of the time table and fares of which will be found on page 60. At holiday times it is found necessary to put on a second boat with the "Olivine" to cope with the traffic between the two resorts.

WOODY POINT and its Restful Beaches.

This marine resort is situated on the southern extremity of the hammer-head shaped peninsula of Humpybong, and commands the best uninterrupted view of Moreton Bay and islands. A daily motor ferry service to Sandgate (particulars of which are given on page 60) affords direct and rapid communication with Brisbane. By this means townspeople who take their families for an extended holiday to Woody Point can themselves reach the city in time for business in the morning, returning again in the evening, the time occupied in travelling being about an hour and a-half each way. On four days of the week this place may be reached by taking the steamer from the city to Redcliffe, thence motoring across by a good road, a distance of 3 miles.

Woody Point is an ideal place to spend a quiet holiday, and to the invalid and holiday-maker it offers all that is essential to gaining health and renewed vigour. On the high esplanade of the Point itself cool and refreshing breezes render the summer season delightful, while the shady beaches below afford restful and sheltered spots for taking one's ease.

Scott's Beach, Woody Point, affords first-class bathing. Being clean, sandy, and safe, it is much frequented by visitors. Good beaches also extend in a westerly direction to Clontarf and Hay's Inlet. A shelter shed, swings, bathing-houses, and other conveniences have been erected by the Shire Council, while the large trees along the foreshores provide ample shade for picnickers.

Woody Point is looked upon as a good fishing ground, and receives a fair amount of attention from city anglers, some of whom have at times had great success with their rods on the jetty. From off the reefs excellent catches are also made of schnapper, squire, sweetlips, rock cod, and bream; whilst the shore fishing provides hauls of whiting, mullet, garfish, flathead, and sole. Sand crabs are also very plentiful, and hundreds of these crustaceans are taken in nets from off the jetty.

(4.) THE ESPLANADE FROM JETTY, LOOKING WIST.

There are two hotels and several boarding-houses, furnished cottages also being available at reasonable rentals. Campers in great numbers avail themselves of this place during extended holidays.

The back country of Woody Point is well adapted for farming and fruitgrowing. The soil is red volcanic, and at no great distance from the sea front well laid out orchards may be viewed. The fruits chiefly grown are bananas, pineapples, papaws, mangoes, and passion fruit.

During the summer months it is usual for the Government steam yacht "Lucinda" to convey thousands of State school children to this spot for a day's outing. Needless to say, it is immensely enjoyed by the young folk.

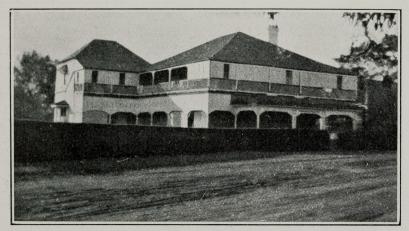

REDCLIFFE-Most Popular of the Bay Resorts.

There is no resort convenient and handy to Brisbane that has effected such a hold on public favour as Redcliffe. During recent years its progress, as evidenced by improvements in the erection of new villas and cottages, has been remarkable. Choice esplanade allotments are in good demand and fetch high prices.

Situated midway between Woody Point and Scarborough, on the eastern shores of the Humpybong Peninsula, it is open to the refreshing breezes of the bay and commands a good view of Moreton Island, at the southern point of which the sand hills are clearly discernible. It was the site of the first white settlement in the area now called Queensland.

It was shortly abandoned, and the aborigines, who, no doubt, had taken large if shy interest in the experiment, named the site "Umpi Bong," meaning "dead houses," from the fact that huts and frames of buildings were left standing there. Accident, time, and habit possibly added the aspirate.

There are practically three ways of reaching this favourite resort. Firstly, there is the steamer direct from Brisbane, entailing a run of about two hours. The fast and well-equipped excursion steamer "Koopa," of the Brisbane Tug Company, leaves the city on Tuesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays, and Sundays, and enables her passengers to enjoy a delightful and interesting trip on the noble Brisbane River and a quick run across Moreton Bay to Redcliffe. During the height of the holiday season an extended service is afforded. Secondly, it may be reached bathing can be enjoyed in perfect safety at all tides. The most popular of these beaches is Sutton's, which at holiday times is a mass of sportive humanity of all ages and sizes. Robinson's and Margate Beaches, towards Scott's Point and Woody Point, and Queen's Beach, towards Scarborough, also claim their fair share of bathers.

Fishing is good in this part of the Bay, and many good hauls have been made by anglers. Shore fishing comprises mainly whiting and bream; whilst the usual variety of reef fish can be secured in proximity to the various reefs.

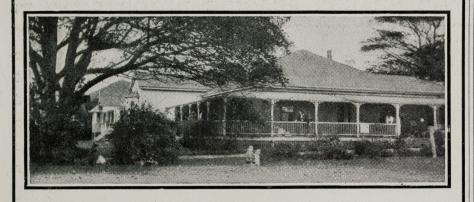

There is a substantial jetty, with shelter rotunda, which extends to deep water, and along which an enjoyable stroll can be taken.

There is splendid accommodation, both hotel and boarding establishments, yet at the Easter and Christmas vacations it is not sufficiently large enough to cope with the great influx of holiday-makers. To save disappointment, it is therefore imperative that application for the necessary accommodation should be made a month or two beforehand. The same applies to the renting of furnished cottages, which, at holiday time, are in great demand at Redcliffe and on the Humpybong Peninsula. This locality is also much sought after by campers, who vie with one another in giving some curious appellation to their respective tents.

BRIBIE ISLAND—The Rising Resort.

Bribie Island, or Bribie, as it is more conveniently called, is reached by continuing the steamer trip in the s.s. "Koopa" past Redcliffe to its furthest limits. It is some 38 miles from Brisbane, and is reached after a three hours' run from the city, the steamer berthing at a short, well-constructed jetty. It and Moreton Island, which lies opposite at a considerable distance, form the most northern outposts of Moreton Bay. Bribie Island is about 20 miles long, from 2 to 3 miles broad, and is well timbered. In the very early days of white settlement its native population comprised one of the most warlike, powerful, and revengeful of the tribes.

The landing place is at Bongaree, on the calm inner beach of the island. The Brisbane Tug Company have formed a road of about 3 miles to the main ocean beach, where surf bathing can be enjoyed. Later on it is intended to construct a tramway thereto.

Near the jetty there is a commodious refreshment-room, where fish and oyster dinners are obtainable, and also a store at which campers can purchase necessities. A large pavilion, bathing sheds, and other conveniences for the use of visitors have been erected. Accommodation is provided for by a couple of boarding-houses, and, as a further inducement, the steamship company is erecting some twelve or more huts of a standard design and size (about 14 feet by 12 feet) along the inner beach. On application to the caretaker, Bribie, these may be let at the following rates:—Ordinary weekly tariff, 6s.; Christmas, New Year, and Easter, 10s. per week; week ends, 3s. 6d.

For the excellence of its fish and oysters, Bribie is known far and wide, and during the summer months it is the intention of the company to run their steamer to Bribie every alternate Saturday to afford city folk and anglers an opportunity of a week-end at this resort.

Splendid motor-boat trips may be taken northward through the picturesque Pumice Stone Channel, on the inner side of the island, to Calcundra, a distance, approximately, of about 28 miles. Arrangements for this trip can be made by first communicating with Mr. A. Bestmann, of Bribie, who also keeps a motor car for hire. By this latter means tourists are enabled to enjoy a trip along the hard sand of the outer beach, and, when the ferrying arrangements at the northern end are completed, the journey to Calcundra may be completed almost wholly by motor car.

Visitors at Caloundra can also make arrangements through Mr. A. Tripcony for their conveyance by motor boat through the Pumice Stone Channel to Bribie, connecting with the s.s. "Koopa" for Brisbane.

The future of Bribie Island as one of Queensland's favoured resorts is assured, and it should prove of more than usual interest to those in search of a good investment.

As a resort for spending a quiet, restful holiday it is to be recommended, and for many years past it has enjoyed much popularity among anglers, who find in the open-boat fishing off Reef Point, in Deception Bay, good sport among the schnapper, squire, parrot, rock cod, and other deepsea fish.

There is a fine sandy beach with public bathhouse, and at places good shelter right to the water's edge is obtainable.

Splendid accommodation is afforded at the Bay View Hotel, with its ideal location and extensive grounds. The panorama extends right across Deception Bay to Toorbul Point and Bribie Island, thence across to Moreton Island. Hotel visitors are met by arrangement at either Redcliffe or Woody Point.

Passing on from Wynnum and Manly, the Cleveland Railway traverses areas devoted to fruitgrowing and other forms of cultivation. Visitors, who are unfamiliar with banana, pineapple, papaw, and mango culture, find it very interesting to see these fruits here at close quarters. The route, too, increases in picturesqueness in such association.

The motor trip by road from Brisbane to these districts is most pleasant and delightful, for nowhere in the Commonwealth can superber glimpses of peaceful bay and island scenery be obtained or better cared for fruit farms be viewed, the whole forming a combination not easily effaced from the memory of the tourist.

Wellington Point is practically an orchard village with a bay outlook.

Birkdale and Ormiston, like Wellington Point, produce luscious fruits and are famous for the size and quality of their strawberry crops. At Birkdale, the Railway Employees' Patriotic Farm has been established and planned out as a fruit and poultry farm wholly for the benefit of returned railway soldiers who are unable further to take up railway work. The farm consists of about 20 acres, of which 15 acres have been cleared and planted with pines, citrus fruits, passion fruit, and vegetables.

Wellington Point proper is some distance from the railway station, and at holiday time is a regular calico township. Good bathing and fishing can be enjoyed, while oysters are obtainable on King Island and elsewhere in the neighbourhood.

Cleveland is the oldest established of the marine resorts of Southern Queensland, and an early endeavour was made to establish it as the chief port of Moreton Bay. It is charmingly situated on Raby Bay, and commands a splendid view of the Bay and islands.

There are a couple of first-class hotels, and also two or three well-appointed boarding establishments.

Fishing, swimming, boating, bathing, cycling, and motoring are provided for the enjoyment of the holiday-maker, whilst a tour of the surrounding country reveals a district rich in beautiful fruit farms.

Redland Bay itself has prettiness enough to charm even the most blase traveller. The fine old family hotel is partly sheltered by large trees of shady and ornamental species, prominent among which are the bunya pines and the giant jacarandas. On the point opposite the hostelry are smooth green lawns and seats for those who wish to make a restful study of the prettily sheltered bay and its farm island.

LAMINGTON NATIONAL PARK.

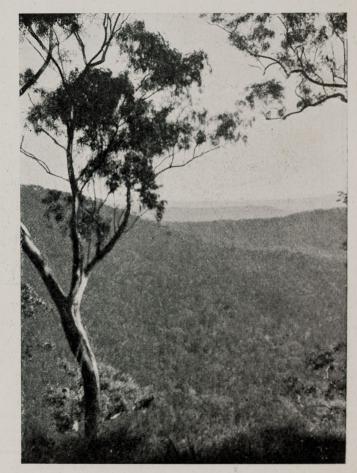

Canungra Creek could be very interestingly followed up stream till it comes into association with the great State reservation known as Lamington National Park. By Parliamentary enactment of August, 1915, that area of 47,000 acres, with all its natural beauties of scrub, forest, hill, vale, stream, and waterfall, has been reserved for all time as a national park to be held in perpetuity by the people. It may be more conveniently approached either on foot or horseback from Lamington, the terminus of a 22 miles tramway line starting from Beaudesert.

Accommodation is provided by the Christmas Creek Hotel, Lamington, and arrangements can be made for the hire of horses.

Train arrangements—Leave South Brisbane Mondays and Fridays 9 a.m., arrive Beaudesert 1.30 p.m.; tram leaves Beaudesert Mondays 2.30 p.m., and Fridays 3 p.m.; arrives Lamington 4.40 p.m. and 5.10 p.m. respectively.

Fares, including Tram from Beaudesert.—First Class, ordinary single, 10s. 6d.; week-end excursion, 16s.; and 2nd Class, 7s. 3d. and 10s. 8d. respectively.

FORDING PLACE AT THE HOMESTEAD, NEAR CANUNGRA.

CANUNGRA-Sheltered Village of the Hills.

Branching off from the South Coast Railway at Bethania Junction is a railroad which runs to Logan Village, and there sends out two more branches, one of which runs on under the name of the Beaudesert Branch Railway, and the other pursues its way to Canungra, 48 miles from South Brisbane Station. That way is interestingly interspersed with the wanderings of the Albert River and sundry picturesque creeks, and touches on stable hills and profitable holdings.

The town of Canungra was born of the commercial value of the timbers which lined creeks and clothed hills, ranges, and gorges in its vicinity. To-day there are large and busy sawmills there, equipped with every modern appliance, and associated in ownership with the Pine Creek Logging Railway. That privately owned concern has several branches which lead to the pine-topped heights and gorges.

By the courtesy of Messrs. Laheys, Limited, a trip by open truck on any of the timber trains affords pretty sights—peaceful homes with orchards and grazing areas charmingly situated beside creeks whose edges are clothed with young cedars, bean, beech, silky oak, shrub and vine.

The trip on the improvised timber truck to view the giants of the forest and the methods attendant on scrub falling and timber hauling is full of interest to the visitor. One of these private lines follows the course of the Coomera River (otherwise known as Pine Creek), branching off to Flying Fox (Beech Mountain) at a point some six miles from Canungra. with a further, though shorter, branch to the aerial skids where the huge logs are carried by aerial cable from the top of Beech Mountain and loaded on trucks which are then hauled by steam motor (expressly built for hill climbing) to the mill. Further along the main tramway route another branch line runs off to Baker's Creek and again taps the mountain for supplies—the quantities of standing pine scrub at this locality being practically incalculable. On the return journey to the mill one has to find as comfortable a seat as possible on top of the logs, but the exhilaration and the novelty of the trip are worth the inconvenience. It is mooted, however, that the proprietors have in view the construction of a passenger car for attachment to the motors which will enable visitors to travel in comfort and view the scenic beauties of this district.

Canungra township is sheltered by hills. The undulations of the site remove it from the faintest

TAMBOURINE MOUNTAIN.

Its Vistas and Salubrious Air.

"Have you ever been to Tambourine Mountain?" is a frequently made query which, if answered in the negative, usually is followed by glowing descriptions of the beauties and climatic advantages of that elevated area. Tambourine Mountain, so famous for its evenness of temperature, its magnificent views. its fertility and the beauty of its natural vegetation, is most easily approached from Oxenford on the South Coast Railway, 39 miles from South Brisbane. A coach meets the train regularly twice a week (Tuesdays and Saturdays at 10 a.m.) or by special arrangement with the proprietor of the hotel at the mountain, the distance to which is about eleven miles. This route takes you to the Southern spur of the Mountain, which in shape somewhat resembles a reaping hook.

Another route, though steeper and shorter (5 miles) is from Tambourine township on the Canungra line to Geissmann's farm-boarding-house.

The ascent from Canungra township leads by horseback or foot over the Darlington Range.

Canungra Village, from which the way has led so steeply, lies in its sheltered glen. Beyond and all round about it are ranges, the nearer hills in verdure clad, behind them higher hills purpled by distance, and far away but clear and striking in profile and altitude a magic uneven line of blue marking the everlasting peaks and domes of the lofty Macpherson Range. Barney, Lindsay, Maroon, Gipps, and other mountains are identifiable by their height and station, and over all is celestial blue.

The ferns of the scrubs, too, are of the rarest and most beautiful varieties.

Fern, vine, leaf, and blossom lure the feet to wander further and the hands to gather spoils.

On the south-eastern side of Tambourine Mountain there is spread out a scene, broad and complete, and of infinitely varied charm. Almost on the edge of a precipitous descent there stands a friendly hostelry known as the St. Bernard Hotel, which is modern and spacious and possesses the permanent advantage of this wonderful outlook. The name seems strangely transplanted from snowy Alpine regions to a scene so full of genial warmth and colour as this.

CATHERINE LEBETER, Proprietress.

High as the point of observation is, the sea, which precise knowledge measures at a level lower by some 1,800 feet than this bold lookout, appears in its distance to be higher still.

Only a few yards from the hotel is a crude rugged cliff, down which in rainy seasons there tumbles a waterfall. Associated with this cliff is a single basaltic column freakishly entwined by a parasitic fig.

Those who know the mountain and its sister ranges well tell of other, deeper and more constant waterfalls, and point to wooded ravines in which lyre birds—now so rare in the ranges—still have their habitat and shelter shyly.

The average annual rainfall in a period covering eleven years was from 55 to 60 inches.

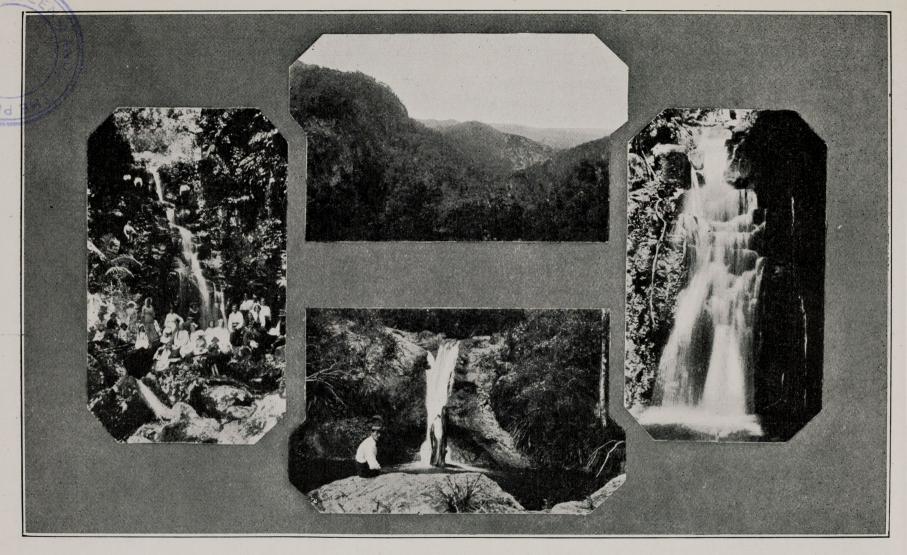

The pioneer settler on the tableland laboriously brought his team and set his axe melodiously ringing as far back as 1868. The total tableland area is about 4,000 acres, and there still is within that area a considerable acreage of standing scrub, portions of which should remain intact as State reservations.

There is plenty of room for expert orchardists at Tambourine Mountain, and abundance of fertility in the soil, which awaits their operations.

A State school, post and telegraph office, store and accommodation-houses, form part of the table-land's equipment. Grass grows abundantly, and dairy herds thrive all the year round.

From the southern spur many delightful rambles can be made through the surrounding country. On Cedar Creek, midway between the two spurs, there are Curtis's and the Cedar Creek Falls, both of which are within comfortable walking distances of either spur. Guanaba Creek, at the foot of the Upper Falls, affords a pretty and very striking picture, as does the Secluded or Middle Fall in Guanaba Gorge. Adjacent to the hostelry and following the course of Guanaba Creek there are also the Little or Red Fall, the Wire Rope Fall, and numbers of others. Tracks have been cut and lead one to the most convenient and beautiful of these enchanting spots.

The charm of boarding at a mountain farm may be tested by visitors who leave the train at Tambourine Railway Station on the Canungra line, and drive five miles to Geissmann's, situated on the northern spur of the Mountain—the cost of the trip by vehicle or horseback being 3s. From thence excursions on foot or on horseback may be made on the mountain or tableland. Interesting spots are: The Gorge on Sandy Creek and Curtis's Falls on Upper Cedar Creek, both of which are handy, being only half a mile distant on either side of the Mountain from "Capo di Monte." Adjacent to the latter the ruins of the old sawmill still remain, and good service was rendered by it in the early days of the timber industry of this district. Amidst a profusion of palms, tree and ground ferns, the water-wheel used as the motive power in those days is still standing.

A splendid panorama of the surrounding country may be obtained from The Knoll, a lookout point about a mile away at the top of the ascent from Tambourine. The Beacon, better known as the "Trig" Station (1,815 ft.), is about three miles away and is reached by a level road through beautiful scrub. It commands a magnificent view inland with the Macpherson Range on the southern horizon. From "The Rocks" a matchless landscape of Canungra and its surroundings is obtained. To your left may be seen the Tabletop, Darlington Range with Mount Lindsay in the distance; then confronting one is the rounded top of Mount Witheren with Mount Barney in the distance. To your right is Canungra Mountain, while at the nearer middle distance the farms and township of Canungra are clearly seen.

Accommodation at the northern end of Tambourine Mountain can only be obtained in the form of furnished cottages and furnished rooms, cooking arrangements for the latter being provided. The cottages may be rented for two guineas per week and the charges for the furnished apartments range from 8s. to 15s. per week, according to size. There is a general store, and arrangements can be made for the supply of provisions.

A reference to the tourist map accompanying this publication will show Tambourine Mountain and explain the relative positions of the farm-boarding-house "Capo di Monte" (north) and the St. Bernard Hotel (south)—the former being marked "B." and the latter "C."

Distances.—Tambourine Railway Station, "A" to "B," 5 miles; road along mountain tableland, "B" to "C," 5 miles; Oxenford Railway Station, "D" to "C," 11 miles.

SOUTHPORT—The Premier Marine Resort.

Southport, which is only fifty miles distant by rail from South Brisbane, is a populous place, much favoured for permanent residence by retired business people. The water front is really the wide estuary of Nerang River, while the elongated southern point of Stradbroke Island practically makes this resort a land-locked one, ensuring thereby calm water for its two-mile length of esplanade.

Southport is the nearest seaside resort to Brisbane at which true surf bathing may be enjoyed. A great ocean beach, extending south to the basaltic headland of Burleigh, is arrived at by crossing the ferry at the mouth of Nerang River and then walking a short distance by a path through sandy scrub. The ordinary facilities for surf bathers are provided. Surfing may also be indulged in by crossing over to the ocean beach on Stradbroke Island, which lies conveniently and protectingly close. Here, too, there is an extensive beach, also abundance of living material for the beautifying of veranda and bushhouse.

At Christmas and Easter time and on the dates of the annual aquatic carnival, Southport is the rendezvous of hundreds of motor and sailing boats and on these occasions a formidable mosquito fleet may be seen at anchor in the Nerang River.

There are handsome residences, standing in large grounds, well kept bowling-greens and a golf course.

A long substantial reinforced concrete pier placed within easy reach of the township has been erected by the Southport Shire Council at a cost of £5,000, and is much availed of by promenaders and anglers. At the end of the pier there is a commodious pavilion and band rotunda, and during the off-season roller skating is indulged of an evening. The pier is in great demand by anglers, and many Brisbane amateur fishermen spend their week-ends here on account of the good sport obtained with the rod. Attached to the pier are enclosed baths where deep-sea bathing may be taken with impunity.

Fishing catches may include huge groper, rock cod, parrot, bonito, as well as the more familiar Moreton Bay varieties, and in winter schnapper fishing is a popular sport.

Many delightful motor-boat trips can be made from Southport. For scenic beauty the upper reaches of the Nerang River afford all that is to be desired.

Excellent fishing is also obtainable. Short pleasant trips may be made from the pier to Stradbroke Island opposite for surf bathing. Extended motor-boat trips can be arranged to Jumpin Pin, the scene of the tragic wreck of the ship "Cambus Wallace," on the 3rd September, 1894. The motor run thereto is full of interest. Leaving Southport, the placid streamlike waters of the Broadwater, past Deepwater Point and Labrador are crossed, and the fishing and oyster cultivating settlements of Currigee and Cooran, on Jumpin Pin is of interest as it was at this spot that the sea broke through and divided the southern portion of the island not many months after the wreck of the "Cambus Wallace." Coomera Creek waters to the northward are also much favoured by anglers. Rowing or motor boats may be readily arranged for from among the boatmen at this resort.

There is a Chamber of Commerce, the council of which is an active body.

A School of Arts proves a great boon to visitors, while the locally printed "Logan and Albert Bulletin" is published weekly.

Church services are also held by the following denominations: — Anglican, Roman Catholic, Methodist, Congregational, and Salvation Army, each having their respective places of worship.

In the furtherance of educational facilities for the younger generation, Southport is well catered for. Quite apart from the usual State School, there are the Southport Convent, beautifully situated in spacious grounds overlooking the waters of the Blue Pacific, and the Church of England Grammar Schools for Girls and Boys.

In the case of the latter institution, accommodation is provided for 150 boys, who are educated and quartered in imposing structures neatly designed on the banks of Nerang River. The grounds are tastefully laid out and include tennis courts, cricket grounds, &c. The Girls' School is situated in the township, and substantial new buildings, to cost some thousands of pounds, are now in course of erection. These, when completed, should prove an architectural acquisition to Southport.

Possessing, as this resort does, the natural advantages for aquatic sport, these establishments pay full attention to the art of rowing, which is indulged by both sexes for exercise and pleasure. The prowess of the Southport High School rowing crews is well understood and acknowledged in metropolitan rowing circles.

Splendid accommodation is afforded by firstclass hotels and boarding establishments, which are conducted on up-to-date lines. Furnished cottages and apartments are available from time to time, and at the season early application is necessary to save disappointment.

As will be seen by advertisements, motor boats, cabs, and motor-cars are available for hire at any time. On communicating with any of the proprietors of the cabs or motor-cars by telephone, arrangements can be made by visitors to be met on arrival of the train at Southport Station, thus avoiding the delay caused at times by having to await return of the conveyances from prior engagements.

BURLEIGH HEADS—And Its Ozone-fanned Headlands.

Of the many seaside resorts on the South Coast line Burleigh Heads, though not generally known to the public, is fast becoming one of the most popular, owing to its beautiful surroundings, safe bathing, and splendid fishing and oyster grounds.

During the Christmas, New Year, and Easter holidays hundreds of tent-dwellers of both sexes camp on the reserve on the foreshores of the main ocean beach wisely set apart for the purpose by the Nerang Shire Council, the nominal fee of one shilling (1s.) per tent per week being charged, and the council providing water and sanitary arrangements.

Burleigh Heads has many advantages over the majority of such resorts. Here are lovely beaches for surfing, with Tallebudgera Creek, where fish and oysters abound, within ten minutes' walk of the camps. A climb to the top of Big Burleigh, with its many attractions, strange rock formations, and a lookout from its summit with an altitude of several hundred feet, reveals one of the most magnificent scenes one need wish to gaze upon. At its foot, to the south, enters Tallebudgera Creek, which gracefully wends its way through the many sandbanks and runs for miles into the distant ranges. On the southern bank of the creek the beach extends as far as the entrance to Currumbin Creek.

Being only a couple of miles from West Burleigh Railway Station, it is easily reached. Coaches ply to and from the station, the usual fare charged being 1s. per head. There is a store at the township, where groceries, &c., may be obtained, and arrangements can be made for the supply of bread, meat, and milk. There are several small cottages, which, from time to time, are let furnished, together with the use of boat; or arrangements may be made for the erection and hire of tents and accessories at moderate rates. Good accommodation may be obtained at the hotel.

CURRUMBIN CREEK.

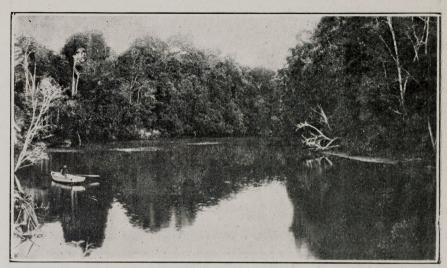

CURRUMBIN—The Secluded and Restful Resort.

This small and quiet marine resort is much frequented by those who are in search of health or require complete rest.

It is ideally situated at the mouth of Currumbin Creek, and is within half a mile of the Currumbin Railway Station (64 miles) on the Tweed Heads Railway.

CURRUMBIN ROCK.

CHARMING SCENE ON CURRUMBIN CREEK.

Here one may enjoy the surf or smooth water bathing, beach or creek fishing and oystering, boating, and shooting in the form of ducks, pigeons, wallabies, &c.

A row up the creek, which is navigable for some four miles, proves most enjoyable, the scenery en route adding much thereto. A visit should also be paid to "The Hanging Rock," situated on Mr.

COOLANGATTA AND TWEED HEADS. Delightful Surfing—Happy Holiday Crowds.

Coolangatta and Tweed Heads, the terminus of the South Coast Line, lie some 69 miles south of Brisbane, and are reached by train from Melbourne Street Station, South Brisbane. Farm and orchard lands very shortly are reached, and are seen amidst picturesque surroundings at Beenleigh and Stapylton. Pimpama, formerly a sugar-cane district: Coomera, where there is a large tidal creek much favoured by fishermen, and Nerang, with its intense cultivation, form the most interesting portions of the route. Although the sea is close at hand during the latter part of the journey, it is not fairly seen till very near its close. Coolangatta is the last station but one, and always many passengers will leave the train there with the intention of sojourning in the fine hotels and other houses of accommodation which directly face extensive beaches.

humorous in the fact that a double line of post and barbed wire fencing with a narrow space between, known as the buffer area, forms the dividing line between the States. Tweed Heads township, in which are most of the shops, belongs to New South Wales, and just o'er the fence is Coolangatta, the pride and joy of tens of thousands of proudly proclaimed Queenslanders.

It is becoming very difficult to find any Queens-lander who does not familiarly know the sea sands and sea wash at Coolangatta. At holiday times the bathers may be numbered by thousands, and at no time of the year will the Tweed Heads and Coolangatta hotels and boarding-houses be without their companies of strangers. Each year, too, sees a large extension in the number of private dwellings. Most of these are built on pretty architectural plans, and their red roofs add to the picturesqueness of the scene.

Very conspicuous, on the sea front, is the stern basaltic headland of Point Danger, so named by Captain Cook in 1770, the cliffs scarred and creviced by the thunderous surges that have rolled in from the eastward from time immemorial, and carved their merciless records on those grey-black rocks.

A short walk across the border to the Pilot Station on North Head reveals some splendid panoramas. Looking south and immediately below is the entrance to the Tweed River along the southern bank of which the main ocean beach extends as far as the Fingal Lighthouse. To the east of this is Cook Island, and further to the south is Cudgen Reef, noted as one of the best fishing grounds on the New South Wales coast. Looking a few degrees to the west the winding waters of the Tweed itself are discerned—only a narrow neck of land dividing this and the ocean in its lower reaches.

To the west and in the foreground lie the Tweed township, Razorback, and the surrounding cultivated hills, with the distant peaks of Macpherson Range in the background.

Northward lie Coolangatta, Danger Bay, Currumbin (with the strange rock formation at its entrance), Burleigh Heads standing out prominently, with Southport and Stradbroke Island in the far distance. The whole of these beautiful surroundings make a panorama the like of which is not surpassed on the east coast of Australia.

The lighthouse is on the South Head, which is

Visitors to Coolangatta (Tweed

Coolangatta Griffith Johnston,

Young,

Coolangatta Sons, known as Fingal Point. Motor boat or river steamer excursions from Tweed Heads are often made to Fingal, which has as its chief attraction a series of basaltic rock of similar conformation to those in the celebrated "Giant's Causeway" of the Old World.

It may or may not be base tradition which attaches some measure of danger to bathing on the small beach of suggestively named Shark Bay, which lies at the back of Greenmount, but it would be basely libellous to give any but the worthiest and pleasantest reputations to the other beaches. Clean and safe, with restful rocks at either end to make seats for staid observers, supplied with many public and private bathing-houses and all the appliances for life-saving, closely contiguous to a refreshment kiosk, and overlooked by hotel balconies, verandas, and look-out towers—they are perfectly located for sociality, recreation, and sport.

The prevailing note of the township is modernity. Electricity, brilliant lighting, hot water services, choice but generous cuisines, climatically appropriate architecture, garages and motor services—everything modern, short of aeroplane service, is procurable.

The municipal councillors of Coolangatta have made "Progress" their watchword, and high and dry areas where once were swamps, seats and shelters, graded roads and easy access to good views are numbered among their good works.

There are plenty of diversions other than those of the beach to be had at Coolangatta and Tweed Heads. The Tweed River trip, excursions to Fingal, trips up Terranora Creek to Seaview Hill, where magnificent views and refreshment are obtainable, to Terranora Lake, Palm Island, and a score of fine fishing grounds.

There are numbers of boats for hire, and a river steamer is always available for the daylight or moonlight trips of large parties.

A climb up a convenient hill known as "Razor-back" and walks to other high points of vantage provide the active with much to enthuse over.

The Tweed Trip.

All students of maps should know that the Tweed River forms portion of the boundary between New South Wales and Queensland, and knowing so much should be interested further to learn, or better still to see, that it is a very beautiful boundary indeed.

The widely increasing popularity of Coolangatta beaches, which are close to the Tweed's mouth, has made many Queenslanders and New South Wales Northern Rivers' residents familiar with the beauties of the river whose ancient namesake in Britain also forms a natural border line.

Usually there is ample time after the arrival of the train at Tweed Heads to have a meal before embarking on the river steamer which plies to Murwillumbah. That busy town o'er the border may also be reached by motor-car or motor 'bus. In the latter case it will be necessary to cross the river on a ferry some miles higher up. Presuming, however, that the traveller or tourist has plenty of time to spare, or that the trip to Murwillumbah will form one of the excursions included in a holiday at Tweed Heads or Coolangatta, the river trip can be more highly recommended. There is a river service each way twice daily, and the steamers are spacious, clean, and comfortable.

The river journey occupies from two and a-half to three hours, and is full of beauty all the way. From the very commencement of the trip eyes are attracted by a stately mountain peak which, no matter how the course may seem to wander, remains in view all the time. This peculiarly attractive peak, Mount Warning, belongs to the Great Dividing Range, and is in close proximity to lesser but harmoniously associated mountains. Like Point Danger, it was named by Captain Cook, who first saw it from the sea in 1770.

Both sides of the river have beauty and charm. Sugar-cane on the hills and slopes, sleek dairy herds on the flats, red roads around and over the uplands, riverside farms and villages, busy ferries and punts, jetties at which cans of cream and other eloquent products of primary industry await transport; banana culture, small densely foliaged islands, strange stony formations, but the crown and glory of the trip is the long extent of palm scrub reservation by which the river way leads seekers of beauty.

As Murwillumbah is neared many barges are seen grouped at their moorings. These ordinarily are used for the conveyance of sugar-cane to the mill, but sometimes they have cargoes of ballast.

The Tweed divides Murwillumbah into two portions, and is here spanned by a handsome bridge. Small craft can travel some miles further up stream, but passenger steamer traffic ends below the bridge. The railway station is close to the wharf. The line leading out from it extends to Glenreagh, 27 miles beyond Grafton on the Clarence River, and is often chosen as a return route from Brisbane to Sydney by persons to whom some inconvenience and loss of time are not a serious consideration.

Murwillumbah and Mount Warning.

The close pressure of green-clad red-soiled hills has caused Murwillumbah to increase in length rather than in width. It is a pretty and a busy town in which are high-class hotels and up-to-date shops. libraries, &c. It has two local newspapers, one of which is published daily. Motor-cars are available for trips to places of interest, and not infrequently visitors make a point of getting as near as possible to that strangely attractive peak, Mount Warning.

On the return river trip Mount Warning and the crumpled line of blue which represents its nearer associations in the Great Dividing Range still more insistently claim the eye, and still more emphatically arouse the artistic sense. Undoubtedly their charm is assisted by their paradoxical appearance of unity in non-uniformity.
